

Example Harbor Agency

A website check focused on helping visitors find your agency and take the next step.

This is a demonstration, not an audit of a real agency. The illustration and findings show the format. Actual reports use verified screenshots from your website.

What already works

- In this example, the agency name is easy to find.
- The main navigation uses familiar page names.

Three priorities to consider

1. Make the next step visible

The illustrative homepage welcomes visitors but does not show a clear contact or quote option near the introduction.

2. Make calling easy on a phone

Suppose a phone number is displayed as plain text without a tap-to-call link.

3. Explain what happens after a quote request

Suppose the quote page has fields but no explanation of who follows up or what happens next.

Scope of this check

A real check reviews public pages on desktop and mobile, contact and quote paths, visible link failures, and basic page titles. Form delivery, analytics, private accounts, insurance advice and legal compliance are outside this check. No revenue or ranking result is promised.

ILLUSTRATIVE EXAMPLE: FICTIONAL HOMEPAGE

Example Harbor Agency

Welcome to our website.

No clear contact option
in this example

1. Make the next step visible

Why it matters: A new visitor has to search for how to contact the agency.

Suggested fix: Add a clearly labelled contact or quote button beside the introduction, linked to the appropriate page.

Where: Fictional homepage illustration above | Illustrative only

2. Make calling easy on a phone

Why it matters: A visitor may need to copy or remember the number before calling.

Suggested fix: Use a telephone link and check it on a phone. Confirm the number with the agency before changing it.

Where: Hypothetical contact-page example | Illustrative only

3. Explain what happens after a quote request

Why it matters: Visitors have less information when deciding whether to send their details.

Suggested fix: Explain that the licensed agency team will follow up. State a response time only if the agency can meet it. Test delivery with permission.

Where: Hypothetical quote-page example | Illustrative only

Keep the report. Choose your next step.

Make the fixes

Share these recommendations with your current provider. A few focused changes may be all you need.

Talk it through

Book a fifteen-minute review. We can explain the findings and help you decide what to prioritise.

Consider a replacement

If a new site makes sense, we can prepare a homepage concept before you decide. The completed website is built after purchase and intake.

If you choose a new website

Starter: three pages: $499 to build, then $79 a month

Agency: six pages: $1,500 to build, then $99 a month

Care covers hosting, backups and small edits within two business days. Domain at cost. Cancel care any time and keep your finished site.

Build fee at checkout. Monthly care starts after the full 14-day checkout period, or launch if later. See insuranceagencysites.com/terms/ for scope and refund terms.

Book your 15-minute review

calendly.com/insuranceagencysites/walkthrough

hello@insuranceagencysites.com | insuranceagencysites.com/pricing/